Croissants by the Commons

Ok so it's probably the worst headline in history that smacks of a local paper in that the whole story is told in the picture and the bold words beneath it! However it's the best we can manage, after the hottest March on records the Indulgence team have been kept frantically busy cruising the Thames with lucky clients who were brave enough to book with us in the depths of winter and some who saw the writing on the wall and took advantage of fabulous last minute deals!

I'm delighted to say that their bravery was rewarded with a succession of wonderful sunny days and they weren't the only ones rewarded. The suntans now being displayed by the crew has raised suspicious questions from one employee who had to spend a fair amount of his salary on a trip to Australia to obtain the same effect that they achieved just East of Wapping!

Joking aside, this last month has been wonderful, the arrival of summer has highlighted to us the exclusivity of having our Predator 63 on the Thames and the demand and enquiries that we have already received this early into our first season would suggest that the crew suntans will get better! If you would like to top up yours aboard Indulgence then please give our sales team a call.

Stationary Charters

It only struck us because of an engineer who was late for an appointment but sitting on Indulgence with nothing to do within the confines of St Katherines dock is actually a really nice place to be. It's strangely peaceful for a plot of land that is only minutes away from the heart of the capital yet the presence of other boats and even the odd seagull give it an immense feeling of coastal tranquillity.

So for those who may be looking to try us before putting to sea, wishing to find an exclusive venue for a cocktail party or simply a special place to have a works party or even a leaving do; why not charter our Predator 63 on the berth. Her lack of movement will mean no crew or fuel costs in fact the only thing you will pay for is a rental charge plus the food and drink that you consume. Give our sales team a call for more details and then bring on the Pimms!
