Talk of the Town

For those of you that remember our November newsletter you may recall our predicted arrival in St Katherines. Unfortunately 24 hours before our departure a Russian freighter lost her cargo of timber in the channel and part of that brought the transportation of Indulgence to an abrupt end somewhere near Dungeness.

We were planning to refuel in Ramsgate anyway before pushing up the Thames but the loss of a trim tab due to the collision and other sustained damage meant that within 90 minutes of arriving in Ramsgate, the local marine engineers were putting their brand new hoist to the test, lifting the biggest boat that had ever been put on the hard in Ramsgate Harbour and immediately set local tongues wagging.

The pilots and life boat crews were all very apologetic that the pile of recovered timber that sits on their dock wasn't higher with the piece that caused our troubles but on the positive side if anybody is looking for some cheap decking I know where there is plenty of wood!

All problems have now been sorted and Indulgence now sits proudly in the Centre basin of St Katherines dock awaiting her first charter in one week!

Charity begins at Home

On December 3rd Everyman, the charity for awareness and research of Male Cancers, are holding a charity fashion show and auction at the Tate Modern in London called Fashionball.

Having approached Indulgence Charters we have gladly donated a London package that is going to go under the hammer to raise some much needed cash for this very worthy cause. The event is being graced by numerous celebrities and if the rumours of their unwillingness to put their hands in their pockets are true, there could very well be a bargain to be picked up.

Tickets for this event are still available so if you fancy the opportunity of picking up one of our London days at reduced rate then information can be obtained either through the Everyman website or drop an e-mail direct to info@indulgencecharters.com and we will gladly direct you to the right person who can sell you a ticket, see you there!
